Angelo’s Taverna and Carboy Winery
It wasn’t long ago that Brewery Lane opened and Breckenridge Brewery moved to Littleton off of South Santa Fe Drive. In a perfect pairing, residents may notice a new addition at 6885 South Santa Fe Drive. Angelo’s Taverna and Carboy Winery opened at the end of August, just yards away from the Breckenridge Brewery Farmhouse.

The restaurant, a Denver staple for decades, is bringing not only its classic Italian recipes to Littleton, but its popular oyster bar and local winery as well. Carboy Winery was a concept developed by Angelo’s owners around the time they decided to open the Littleton location. It functions similar to a microbrewery, with wine served on tap and Carboy bottles for purchase that customers can refill like growlers. The winery will also offer tastings and serve smaller food items like charcuterie plates to pair with the wine. Angelo’s new Littleton location is about 10,000 square feet, and features a patio, a roundabout bar, a fire pit and access to the Mary Carter Greenway Trail. Now that its doors are open, the owners hope to bring an incredible dining experience to every one of their customers.

Let’s “Let’s Clear the Air”
Last year on November 3, 2015, Littleton City Council passed an ordinance making Downtown Littleton a smoke free zone. The new law became effective January 1, 2016, but some residents and visitors are still unaware smoking is prohibited and also includes the use of electronic smoking devices, “vaping” devices, etc.

Commemorating the anniversary is the introduction of the “Let’s Clear the Air” campaign. The city will distribute window decals and drink coasters to local businesses. No smoking signs will soon include the blue “Let’s Clear the Air” message. Let’s all pitch in and encourage voluntarily compliance with the ordinance by informing visitors who smoke that smoking is prohibited except roof-top and back patios where allowed by the owner, and in private parking lots and public alleys 15 feet from any entrance. "Let’s Clear the Air" and make Downtown Littleton a healthier place for everyone.
"As a downtown shop owner, we welcome everyone to our store. I appreciate it when those who want to smoke pay attention to the new zones and don't smoke outside our door. I think the city's new "Let's Clear the Air" campaign is perfect. It's a positive message for all, and at the end of the day, we all love Downtown Littleton and just want to enjoy its charm." Shane George, Workhorse 45.
